Opening New Point Loma Highway A Local Benefit

Of great benefit to Sunset Cliffs, Ocean Beach and particularly the westerly side of Point Loma, was the completion and opening on Tuesday of nearly three miles of newly paved highway —El Camino Cabrillo— The new paving, western terminal for both Kings highway and Broadway of America, extends from Naval Radio station to El Cabrillo monument, encircling the Old Spanish lighthouse.

Keynote of the dedicatory program was struck by John L. Fox, president of the chamber of commerce, who said: "Its completion is the result of cooperation of city, county, state and federal grovernment and a group of civic organizations."

Featured speaker at the ceremony was Earl Lee Kelly, state director of public work who complimented San Diegans upon their cooperation in the building of the highway.

Frank Forward, master of ceremonies, complimented the following upon their part in obtaining construction funds and called upon some of them for short addresses: Harry C. Clark, chairman of the national highway committee; Supervisors Edgar F. Hastings and Tom Hurley, City Manager Fred Lockwood, former Sen. Leroy Wright, president of San Diego Historical society; Winifred Davidson, historian; Rep. George Burnham, Assemblyman George Bowers, Bruce Stannard and Charles Stream; State Sen. William Harper, Fire Warden Luther Gordon, Roy Hegg, chairman of the San Diegans; Sam Porter and Gen. F. S. Strong, state SERA director.

Daniel J. Tobin, assistant superintendent of Sequoia national park, represented Col. John R. White, superintendent of El Cabrillo national monument, Yosemite and Sequoia national parks. He spoke briefly, outlining efforts to obtain $35,000 allotment for improving the Point Loma monument.

About 200 prominent citizens attended the dedication, driving over the new highway to the end of Point Loma when the ceremonies were completed.

South and east of El Cabrillo national monument, which is to be landscaped by the federal government, a stone parapet three feet high has replaced the white wooden fence and posts. Autoists will be able to park their cars against the parapet and have an unobstructed view of sea, harbor, city, mountains, Mexico and the army-navy flying field on North island.

At the Bennington national monument, the old highway is paralleled by the new paved road, thus affording an area for parking a large number of cars.

Thousands of motorists, the great number of whom are visitors to this section, each year go to the old Spanish light house on the tip of Pt. Loma. With this new and modern highway reaching and connecting with the pavement extension of Sunset Cliffs and Ocean Beach there is no doubt but that we shall see and no doubt benefit from a larger travel of those who come to view and enjoy the wondrous beauties of the Pacific Ocean and its refreshing breezes.

A contract for realigning and paving two miles of highway extending from Willow street thru Canon St., to connect with the Point Loma paved road is expected to be awarded soon. This new road will eliminate the present sharp turn near the Theosophical headquarters, parallel the rows of stately palms east of the military reservation and will comprise another modernized important link of San Diego county's unexcelled highway system.

RAYMOND WHALEN WED AT DOUBLE CEREMONY

St. Joseph's Catholic church was the setting Saturday morning for a double wedding ceremony performed at solemn high mass by Monsignor John Hegarty. The service united Miss Elizabeth Margaret Case, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Case, with Robert Theodore Ames, son of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Ames, of Las Cruces, New Mexico, and Miss Elizabeth Vesco daughter of Mrs. Mary Vesco, with Raymond Stephen Whalen, son of Col. John Whalen (ret.) and Mrs. Whalen 4519 Cape May avenue.

Bernard Ames and Chester Whalen brothers of the respective bridegrooms, each served as best man.

Ushers were Leon V. Lattimore, George Lambert, Ray Eisenbise and Ellsworth Whalen.

Mr. Whalen is associated with the National Life and Accident Insurance Co. here.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Whalen attended San Diego High school, from which Mr. Whalen was graduated. He also is a member of the Mission Hills Catholic club. The couple plans to take their honeymoon later and will be at home to friends almost immediately at 317 Upas street San Diego.

MUSINGS WHILE MEANDERING

(By Merrill Stuart)

Today for the first time this good old summer time I went down to the beach. "Hello, Merrill!", called the gay voice of a long-time friend from beneath an orange umbrella. "Musing again?"

"Not only musing, but meandering!" I answered as gaily. And somehow that greeting warmed the cockles of my heart as I went my way in the glinting sunshine of the sea's curving strand.

Same old beach, same pleasure-seeking crowds, colorful pyjamas, bandanas and what have you; rollicking children, dogs, lots of 'em, winging birds, splashing surf, surging water. Just as always—

But are the same? Does life stand still from one good old summertime to another? Beneath the surface, griefs and losses each heart has borne. Who misses those not here? Who listens for one childish laugh the less? Who counts the gulls whose bright pinions glance no more? Cares and troubles swallowed up in one year's passing.... who delves after them? How deep the sea and what lies upon its gray floor....who cares? It surges forever to and fro, its tides bearing us always onward. Men, women, children, birds and beasts play but for a little while upon the shining sands, and then....

Well, be all that as it may, 'tis gladdening to be among those present now; 'tis good to be gay and friendly and joyful in this good old summer time....comes there never another!

Some nice old ladies live in our town. Wonderful they are, too! Old as years are counted, but young in hearts, minds and hands.

One at 85 made herself a spiffy dress, and wears it with an air all her own. another ceaselessly paints the sea in its might and main, and does it not ill, either. Still another sits at her quilting frame stitching in and out lovely designs from her creative brain and love of beauty. And that dear old soul who reads and forever reads, well informed upon the world's passing show, opinions and judgment all her own. And she....that most interesting one who gets thrills out of travel, to whom a trip around the world is a mere bagatelle. "I was the youngest woman on board the boat!" declared she. "In spirits or years?" I asked. "Both!" said she.

'Tis an age of young-old ladies, and they're all on top of the heap, as was Madame Clair, in that charming book. Read it, and learn how to grow old gracefully. Since the years must take us, let them take us while we're up and doing. We're a long time dead....very dead.

* * * * * *

Just lately there passed from our midst a lady of achievements, culture, refinement, wisdom in the world's ways. One whose artistic hands ceased their work at 79, whose beautiful portraits and landscapes will live long....Miss Kate Watkins. Once she told me of her life. Colorful youthful days in New York Art League; then studying in Paris at Academy Julien under eminent instructors; again to America to teach in various eastern colleges of art; finally, a Californian where in the Redlands University she established the chair of History of Art, and spent continuous years educating and forever giving of herself. Who shall measure her influence? And I doubt not whither she has gone she will use her great gifts still.... for genius never dies!

Everybody knitting these days. Gloves, hats, string dresses, coats ....and now, it's little knitted pockets on beach shoes. What next; Think up something new if you can!

That new book "Lamb in His Bosom" is good reading. Good because the author wrote of the things she knew so well....and somehow that always carries conviction.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR REPORTS INTERNATIONAL MEET

Sam Frazee, lieutenant-governor of San Diego-Imperial valley division was the guest speaker at Kiwanis Wednesday noon, giving a splendid report of Kiwanis International held at Toronto, Canada, June 10-14.

The lieutenant-governor said a special train was started at Los Angeles with 85 Kiwanians and their wives, 25 Glendale singers, and this train added to until the California-Nevada district had 173 members on the train.

They journeyed to San Francisco, Portland, Yakima, Spokane, Glacier National park where they entertained by a party of Blackfeet Indians, then on again to Minneapolis, St. Paul and Toronto, Canada.

A highly interesting and enthusiastic convention was held with a great Jamboree in the Toronto fair grounds at the closing. Much serious business was attended to and one of the resolutions passed was that Kiwanis believed only the government of a country should be interested in the manufacture of war munitions, for sometimes the desire for profit overbalances the real need for the product.

The Glendale Singers, a splendid chorus of male voices, brought much fame and favorable publicity for the California delegation. After singing the opening night of their stay they became very much in demand and were generous in giving their services to a number of children's homes, hospitals, prisons and other public and religious institutions.

The fine entertainment and friendship shown to fellow Kiwanians by their Canadian brothers was an outstanding gesture of fellowship and will no doubt prove of lasting benefit to the two nations.

Doc Eastman of the La Jolla club was a make-up visitor. Rev. James Hughes was a guest of Myron Insko.

MacLean Wilson of the east San Diego club together with John Vogt of Julian were welcome guests. John is candidate for supervisor of the 5th district at the August primary and Mac we presume will be assistant supervisor in case John is fortunate enough to win.

WILLIS KENLINE MARRIED SATURDAY

Miss Nina Frances Pimbley of Mission Beach was wed Saturday last to Willis J. Kenline of 4739 Santa Monica avenue, Ocean Beach.

The marriage took place at St. Paul's Episcopal church, the Rev. Charles Barnes officiating. Due to the recent death of the bride's father the ceremony was quiet and only attended by members of the immediate families.

Mrs. Kenline graduated in June from State College and was a member of Epsilson Pi Theta sorority.

Willis Kenline was a spring graduate in electrical engineering of the University of California at Berkeley. He was a member of Delta Pi Beta fraternity while attending State college here. The young folks had been friends since boyhood and girlhood.

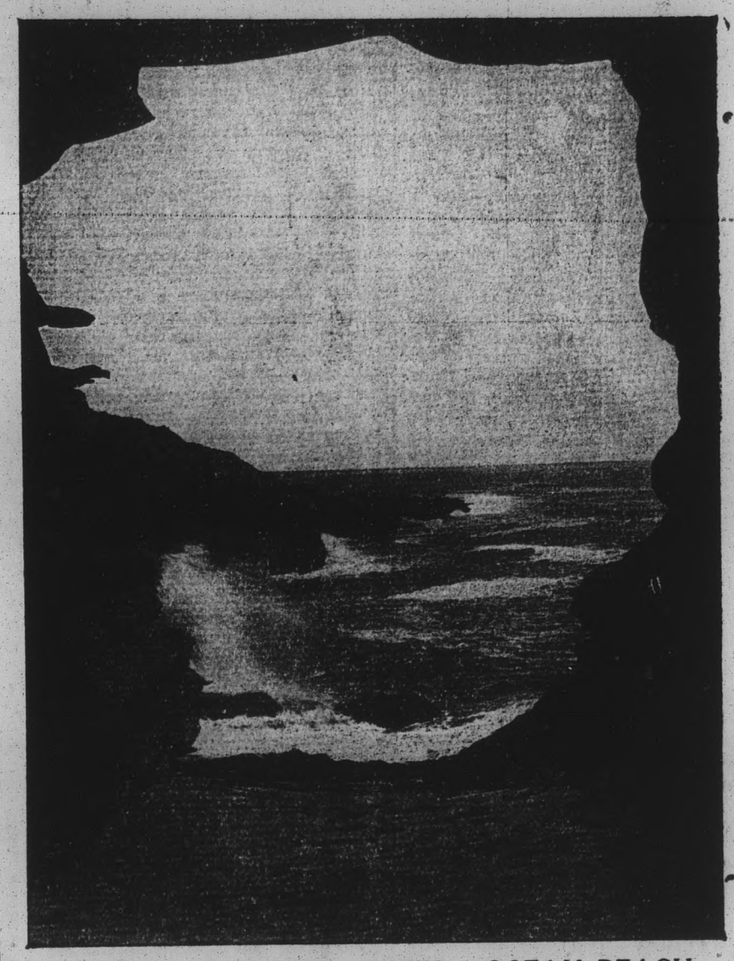

The newlyweds left Sunday evening for Yosemite park on a two weeks honeymoon. Returning they intend visiting relatives in Hollywood and will make their home at Mission Beach with the bride's mother.

FLORENCE CHADWICK WINS AT OCEANSIDE SWIM

10,000 persons were at Oceanside Sunday to witness the second annual Knights of Columbus ocean pier swimming race.

Florence Chadwick, Ocean Beach wonder girl swimmer, showed the best form of the women rough water contestants winning in 15 minutes 43 1-5 seconds, her closest rival, Mary Ann Hawkins of the Los Angeles Athletic club, was second in 16:09.

Paul Wolf of Los Angeles won the men's race in 12 minutes 20 seconds.

A VIEW AT SUNSET CLIFFS — OCEAN BEACH

Delay on Pier Project Now May Kill Chance S.E.R.A. Aid

A dozen or more Ocean Beach residents interested in plans of building a fishing pier at this point appeared before the city council Monday to keep in touch with proceedings there. While the daily papers report informal approval for construction and the city manager was given another week to make borings in the ocean bed so that more definite information might be had, we are not as optimistic as some, for the lack of interest is surprising from some quarters in the city hall. City Councilman Al Bennett of this district is showing practically the only interest of these members.

THREE DAYS HAVE PASSED SINCE THIS MEETING AND AS FAR AS WE ARE ABLE TO LEARN NO PLANS HAVE BEEN MADE FOR THESE BORINGS WHICH ARE PROMISED FOR MONDAY. IT LOOKS LIKE MORE DELAY. DELAY WILL KILL OUR CHANCES FOR THE PIER. SERA MUST HAVE ACTION SO THEY CAN PUT MEN AND MATERIAL INTO THIS PROJECT OR IT WILL GO ELSEWHERE.

There is little doubt in the minds of those interested here but what the same rock formation extends out in the ocean 1,000 feet as we have all along the shore from Point Loma to La Jolla, however, if the engineer must have borings before he can proceed, by all means let's have those borings.

The U. S. Government has complete maps with soundings of the ocean bed all along our western slope A copy of these are on file with the harbor department and are available to our city officials. Why not use this information and save time and expense. Some little investigation was made last year in regard to these soundings and they tallied with the information on file therefore would seem practical for our present use.

Several letters endorsing this project were read at the council meeting. One from the Public Safety committee, one from the Izaak Walton League, one from Caroline King Gough and one from Myron Insko, president of Ocean Beach Kiwanis.

The ocean and the beaches are what brings tourists, visitors and permanent residents to this section. Let us have a place where the fishermen, boys and women who like the sport can enjoy themselves to the fullest extent.

WINIFRED DAVIDSON TO RESUME STORIES IN SEPTEMBER

Mrs. Winifred Davidson, historian and author, has found her writing time so pressing and need now necessary for research that no more articles "Ocean Beach of Other Days" will be given our readers until September.

Mrs. Davidson spends practically all her time in her work as historian for the San Diego Historical Society and writing for daily papers and magazines. She deserves great credit and much praise for her faithfulness to this task, which perhaps will be more appreciated by future generations than it is today.

Our readers we know will be anxious to have Mrs. Davidson resume her tales about early times in this section and we will await anxiously the coming of Sept. 1st and the continuation of these stories.

SILVER SPRAY HOTEL IMPROVEMENT NEARLY READY

An invitation to dine at the Silver Spray hotel the last of the week was gratefully accepted by the editor's family and the hospitality of Dorine Perrine, proprietor and Mabel Jones, manager, was enjoyed thruout a very pleasant evening.

The occasion Mr. Perrine said was to try out food prepared by their new chef, W. J. Murray, assisted by Mrs. Murray, in the dining room. Now we can recommend the Silver Spray dining room highly to all those who are wishing a good meal, served in an attractive manner, and very reasonably priced.

Perrine and Jones have worked hard for a number of years improving this unique property. They have an apartment hotel, right on the beach, with a large salt water plunge in connection. The plunge in the past six months has been thoroly rebuilt and finished according to A. A. A. swimming standards. An additional apartment, hotel rooms, and garage are now being completed on the south and guests are always given courteous treatment and the management leaves nothing undone which might add to their comfort.

President Cleans Desk for Hawaii Cruise—Drouth Relief Funds Allocated for Middle West—Federal Reward for Dillinger's Arrest.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© by Western Newspaper Union.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, back from his brief trip to New Haven, New London and his home in Hyde Park, put in a busy week clearing up his desk for his departure on the long planned cruise through the Panama canal to the West coast and Hawaii. All those who have had occasion during the last generation to call at the White House are glad to learn that Rudolph Forster was selected by the President to make the voyage with him. Since the days of McKinley this able and courteous gentleman, now executive clerk in charge of the White House executive offices, has been on duty and never before has he accompanied any President on a trip. Now Mr. Forster is going to have a real vacation, and Secretaries Howe, McIntyre and Earle will remain behind to take care of the White House. There will be no other civil officials aboard the cruiser Houston.

Rudolph Forster

On the way down to the canal Mr. Roosevelt will visit Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. From Panama City he will go to the Hawaiian Islands, first making a brief stop in Colombia. Returning to the Pacific coast early in August Mr. Roosevelt will travel overland by rail, and there is a possibility he will make some speeches, probably in Minneapolis and Green Bay, Wis., where the tercentenary of the Badger state will be celebrated.

IMMEDIATE relief for the drouth stricken areas in the Middle West was decreed by the President in an executive order which allocated $56,250,000 for direct aid. The remainder of the first distribution of federal relief for the drouth area included $43,750,000 for purchase of seed, food and live stock; $25,000,000 for seed and feed loans, $12,500,000 for purchase of lands in the drouth regions, and $12,500,000 for establishment of civilian conservation camps in the stricken region.

FINAL settlement of the questions in dispute between the steel masters and their workers is expected and the threatened strike probably will be averted. The President, invoking his new emergency powers, named a three-man board to arbitrate the industry's troubles, and both sides indicated they would accept its decisions. The members of the board are Admiral Henry A. Wiley, James Mullenbach of Chicago and Judge Walter Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme court. The two latter have had long experience as labor mediators. Under the emergency law this group can order and police elections in all steel plants to determine which union shall represent the men in collective bargaining. The board can also hand down decisions on all complaints brought by either workers or employers.

President Roosevelt ordered the board to report to him from time to time through Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

IT MAY be necessary to resort to the emergency labor legislation to put an end to the street car strike in Milwaukee. A minority of the company's employees went out and by violence forced the suspension of service. The mobs fought the police and attacked the company's electric plant and its cars.

The American Federation of Labor unions are trying to compel the company to recognize their representatives in dealing with employees instead of the company union with which it has had a labor contract for 16 years.

Rev. Francis J. Haas, formerly of Milwaukee and now chief conciliator for the national labor board, was sent to the Wisconsin city with full authority to act. Mayor Hoan, a Socialist, held the company responsible for the strike and ensuing riots.

FEDERAL JUDGE J. P. BARNES of Chicago gave one phase of the New Deal a rap by granting an injunction restraining the government from enforcing the provisions of the AAA milk licensing agreement against the independent milk dealers in the Chicago area. In effect, the judge ruled that the government, through the AAA, has usurped powers which under the Constitution it had no authority to assume.

The AAA officials in Washington declared they would seek to have Judge Barnes' ruling set aside. Jerome Frank, general counsel for the AAA, admitted that if the decision were upheld by higher courts, the fifty marketing agreements now in force under the farm act and hundreds of the codes under the NRA would be without constitutional sanction.

HARRIMAN hosiery mills, the concern that was deprived of its Blue Eagle last April, has been forced to close down, and its 653 workers are out of jobs. The little city of Harriman, in Tennessee, depended largely on the mills and the company had the support of practically all the people there in its dispute with the NRA. The officials of the company sent to Administrator Johnson—and to President Roosevelt—a vigorous protest, asserting the concern had been unjustly and unfairly deprived of its property rights in the Blue Eagle.

"We would like to know," said the letter, "if the Blue Eagle is the property of the law-abiding citizens of the United States or if it is a plaything to be held over the heads of honorable and decent employers as a cudgel to browbeat and bulldoze them into surrendering their constitutional rights for the benefit of outside agitators whose only purpose is to exploit labor for their own personal gain."

General Johnson's reply was in effect that the company could stay closed forever if it wished to, but it must comply with the NRA regulations to get back its Blue Eagle.

The dispute started last October, when about 300 employees went on strike with the claim that the company would not reinstate twenty-three workers who had joined the United Workers' Textile union.

Fred Held, vice president of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, went to Harriman after the mills closed, but was taken from the train by a band of armed men, taken some distance in an automobile and released on promise not to return.

POSTMASTER GENERAL FARLEY and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau came forward with an announcement of their plans for the spending of $110,000,000 in the construction of new post offices and federal buildings.

In all, 626 communities in every state and four territories have been selected for new federal buildings, according to the announcement. Half of the program—302 buildings—will be undertaken with $65,000,000 authorized for that purpose in the recently enacted deficiency-emergency appropriation bill. It was explained that 324 buildings will be constructed with "funds already available from other sources."

UNCLE SAM is determined to get John Dillinger, the country's most notorious desperado. A few days ago Attorney General Cummings offered a reward of $10,000 for the capture of the murderer and bank robber, and half as much for information leading to his arrest. At the same time the attorney general offered $5,000 for the capture of Lester M. Gillis, alias "Baby Face" Nelson, Dillinger's right-hand man. Information leading to Gillis' capture will be rewarded with $2,500.

John Dillinger

This action was followed up by consideration of plans for co-ordinating federal, state, and local efforts to catch Dillinger. It was understood that plans using the army and National Guard in the offensive were under discussion.

The federal charge against Dillinger is transporting a stolen automobile across the state line. Nelson is wanted in connection with the murder of W. Carter Baum, Department of Justice agent, near Rhinelander, Wis., April 23.

In addition to the federal prize, the person who can catch Dillinger will receive $1,000 reward from each of five states—Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Minnesota.

SITTING in his White House study, President Roosevelt talked over the radio directly to millions of his fellow countrymen, seeking to reassure those who have been alarmed by the frequent allegations that the New Deal is becoming radical. He rebuked his critics as "doubting Thomases," "prophets of calamity" and "theoretical diehards," and by implication defended the brain trust. He highly praised the departing congress for its work in the lines of relief for the distressed, recovery and "reform and reconstruction."

Mr. Roosevelt told his listeners the simplest way they could judge recovery was to consider their own situations.

"Are you better off than you were last year?" he asked. "Are your debts less burdensome? Is your bank account more secure? Are your working conditions better? Is your faith in your own individual future more firmly grounded?"

SOMETHING like a hundred thousand Americans and Canadians gathered in Detroit for the good will celebration which was held on the Ambassador bridge under the auspices of the American Legion and the Canadian Legion. The bridge, which links Canada and the United States across the Detroit river, was turned into a huge playground and customs and immigration barriers were lifted for the day.

GIVING up hope for a disarmament pact at Geneva, the British government has under way extensive plans for strengthening its air force for defense of the country. This was announced to parliament by Lord Londonderry, secretary for air. He turned down a suggestion for an imperial air force for the defense of the empire, but said there would be close co-operation with the air forces of the dominions.

IN A note to Secretary of State Hull, the British government rejects his suggestion that the war debt might be paid in kind, holding that such a procedure would be impractical and dangerous to Anglo-American trade. The British expressed a wish for settlement of the debts problem "whenever it may appear that the present abnormal conditions have so far passed as to offer favorable prospects for a settlement."

NAZI storm troops in Germany have demanded that the Stahlhelm, or Steel Helmets, composed of war veterans, be banned by the Hitler government. But the leaders of the organization reply that it shall not be suppressed or absorbed in the storm troops. The existence of the Stahlhelm, they assert, is guaranteed by President Von Hindenburg, Chancellor Hitler, and other Nazi chiefs.

ON THE twentieth anniversary of the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand at Sarajevo, the event that precipitated the World war, there were bombing outrages throughout Austria directed against the Dollfuss government and possibly instigated by the Nazis. Certainly the disorders were political in nature. Power plants, railway lines, and one newspaper office were blown up.

WITH congress adjourned and the President preparing for his Hawaii cruise, Miss Margaret Le Hand, confidential secretary to Mr. Roosevelt, decided to take a vacation, so she sailed for Europe. Now comes from Paris the positive statement that Miss Le Hand is to be married to William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to Russia, and that she was making the final arrangements in the French capital. The young lady would say nothing in confirmation or denial except to declare that she was not going to Russia, but the correspondents were sure the plans were well advanced for what it had been hoped would be a secret wedding. It was understood that Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., a close friend of the President, would act as best man for Mr. Bullitt. Mr. Vanderbilt is in the Riviera, and Miss Le Hand also was booked to go there before returning to America late in July.

Margaret Le Hand

Ambassador Bullitt is a widower and has a young daughter who is now with him in Moscow.

INFORMATION was given the house committee investigating War department expenditures that prices quoted the government on automobiles have jumped since the issuance of the executive order excluding Henry Ford from bidding until he certifies compliance with the NRA. Representative Kvale of Minnesota said he had evidence to back up this charge, and that the situation has cost the government thousands of dollars already.

"For Henry Ford to submit a certificate of compliance," Mr. Kvale said, "would mean he would have to secure 5,000 certificates of compliance from those who furnish parts and products for his cars. That is obviously impossible."

The committee called on War department officials to reply to this accusation.

HERE is more woe for President Mendieta of Cuba. The A. B. C. society, strongest of the secret political associations in the island, has announced that it would no longer support the Mendieta government. The reason given was "the lack of firmness displayed by the government in dealing with terrorists, especially with men responsible for the assault on the A. B. C. parade June 17."

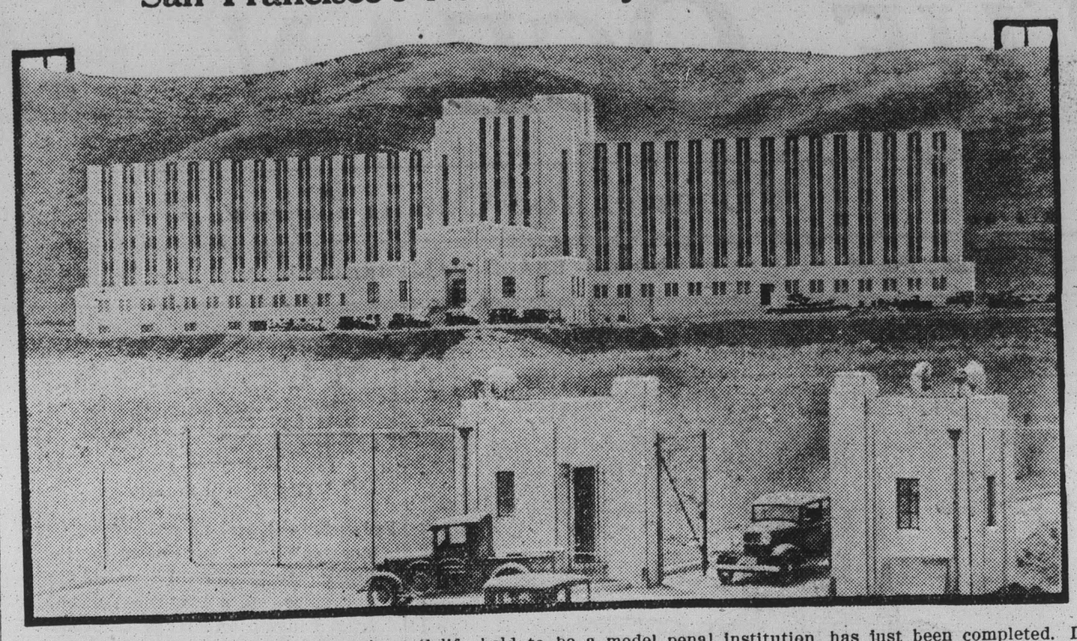

The A. B. C. manifesto said the society would continue to work for the good of Cuba against terrorism and other forms of "gangsterism" which "are directly traceable to the influence of Moscow gold."

A crisis in the cabinet resulted and several members, who belong to the A. B. C., offered their resignations, as did 600 employees of the treasury department.

A committee of conciliation was at work on the government's troubles and it was reported that it might suggest a parliamentary form of government headed by a prime minister. The A. B. C. leaders would agree to this if the premier were chosen from their ranks.

BILATERAL conversations on naval strength, being conducted in London by the United States, Great Britain and Japan preparatory to the coming conference, did not appear to be getting anywhere. The British submitted a plan whereby the United States should sink its battleship fleet and Britain should be permitted to build a large number of small cruisers, airplane carriers and airplanes, and they, the proposers, were frightened by their own temerity. Meanwhile the Japanese delegate told the American representative that his government was increasingly suspicious of an understanding between Britain and America that would work to the detriment of Japan

This is not a scene from a motion picture but a view of the new style upper berth in the sleeping cars with which the Union Pacific streamline train is equipped. Folding stairways take you to the upper, and a little platform provides room enough to stand up while dressing. A sliding aluminum panel completely encloses the berth, making it in fact a small compartment. All berths, both upper and lower, are provided with individual washstands. The new style sleeping car is one of the innovations being shown at A Century of Progress in Chicago as part of the Union Pacific's streamline train.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE JOKER OF THE OLD ORCHARD

AS PETER RABBIT sat blinking and staring at the sober-looking stranger who was sitting where he had expected to see Glory the Cardinal, the stranger opened his mouth, and from it came Glory's own beautiful whistle. Then the stranger looked down at Peter and his eyes twinkled with mischief.

"Fooled you that time, didn't I, Peter?" he chuckled. "You thought you were going to see Glory the Cardinal, didn't you?"

Then without waiting for Peter to reply this sober-looking stranger gave a concert such as no one else could give. From that wonderful throat poured out song after song and note after note of Peter's familiar friends of the Old Orchard, and the performance wound up with a lovely song which was all the stranger's own. Peter didn't have to ask who the singer was; it was Mocker the Mockingbird.

"Oh!" gasped Peter. "Oh, Mocker, how under the sun do you do it? I was sure it was Glory whom I heard whistling. Never again will I be able to believe my own ears."

Mocker chuckled. "You're not the only one I've fooled, Peter," said he. "I flatter myself that I can fool almost anybody if I set out to. It's lots of fun. I may not be much to look at, but when it comes to singing there is no one I envy."

"I think you are very nice looking, indeed," replied Peter politely. "I've been finding out this morning that you can't tell much about folks just by their looks."

"And now you've learned that you can't always recognize folks by their voices, haven't you?" said Mocker.

"Yes," replied Peter. "Hereafter I shall never be sure about feathered folks unless I can both see and hear them. Somebody told me once that down in the South you are the best loved of all the birds. Is that so?"

"That's not for me to say," replied Mocker modestly, "but I can tell you this, Peter. They do think a lot of me down there, and it is all on account of my voice. I would rather have a beautiful voice than a fine coat."

Peter nodded as if he quite agreed, which, when you think of it, is rather funny, for Peter has neither a fine coat nor a fine voice. A glint of mischief sparkled in Mocker's eyes. "There's Mrs. Goldy the Oriole over there," said he. "Watch me fool her."

He began to call an exact imitation of Goldy's voice when he is anxious about something. At once Mrs. Goldy came hurrying over to find out what the trouble was. When she discovered Mocker she lost her temper and scolded him roundly. Mocker and Peter laughed, for they thought it a good joke.

QUESTION BOX
By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Is Florida a good place for one's nerves?

Yours truly,
JACK SUNVILLE.

Answer—I'll say it is. I know a man who went to Florida five years ago and opened a hotel. He used to charge $2 a night for a room and bath. Now he has the NERVE to charge $10 a night for the same room.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Will you please settle a dispute between my wife and me? My wife has a brother who always goes to other people's houses just so he can get drinks of whisky for nothing. I claim a fellow who does a thing like that is a "sponge." My wife says he is not a "sponge." Who is right?

Yours truly,
A. GNOG.

Answer—Your wife is right. Her brother fills up on whisky while a "sponge" generally fills up on water.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
What is meant by "Race Suicide?"

Yours truly,
POLLY TISHAN.

Answer—When a man goes to the track, bets on a horse, loses all his money, becomes despondent, and kills himself—that's "Race Suicide."

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am a boy fifteen years of age. I applied for a job in a grocery store, and when the grocer asked me how many ounces make a pound, I said 16 ounces. He wouldn't give me the job. I wonder why?

Truly yours,
D. LIVERYBOYE.

Answer—The next time you ask for a position in a grocery store, if the grocer asks you how many ounces make a pound just say 14 ounces, and you'll get the job.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
A friend of mine who has just returned from a motor trip of 3,000 miles, told me he enjoyed touring on the roads built by Americans. I asked him what he meant "roads built by Americans," and he said: "Why, Roosevelt boulevard and Lincoln highway." Then he told me the worst roads he had to travel over were built by a Frenchman. I did not want to appear ignorant so did not ask him who he meant. Will you please tell me the name of the Frenchman who built the bad roads he refers to?

Yours truly,
MAG NEETOW.

Answer—He is referring to "Detour."

THE VINE
By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE vine is trying vainly to climb high
Upon the smooth boards of my little shack.
The sun is peering from an azure sky,
But there is something here that holds it back.
Nothing to climb on, that's the rub! It falls
Back on the brick of the foundation walls.

Today I'll buy a trellis for my vine,
And guide its tendrils up the strong white wood,
Reflecting as I do on the divine
And lofty way God labors for our good,
Giving us room to climb to heights above
Upon the golden trellis of his love.

Mother's Cook Book

FOR THE TEA TABLE

SO MUCH depends upon the attractiveness of the tea table—simplicity is the rule, even where the pocketbook need not be considered. One need not buy expensive teas, either, for the ordinary ones when treated to a bit of orange peel, a flower or two of jasmine will have a flavor which will be found quite distinctive.

Dainty open sandwiches which take time to prepare but are so fetching in appearance are often all that is served with the cup of tea. Cut the bread into one-half inch slices or a bit thicker, then into rounds or in any design. One may have hearts, clubs, diamonds or spades if so inclined, as there are all sorts of sandwich cutters on the market. Spread the bread lightly with mayonnaise, then pipe on cheese with whipped cream, decorate with finely minced parsley, peppers or candied fruits. There is no end to the variety which anyone may think up, and use almost any food at hand.

Many hostesses like to serve preserved fruits for sweetening, such as pineapple, candied cherries, orange quarters, glaced, and various other combinations. With the fragrance of the tea and fruit one needs some sweetening. Rock candy makes a delightful one as it may be bought in various colors to match the decoration. This adds much to the appearance of the table. This is never placed in the tea, but passed that the color may add delight to the partakers.

Other candy flavors are in vogue—mint is always enjoyed. Fresh mint dusted with powdered sugar is especially attractive.

Peanut Muffins.

Mix and sift two cupfuls of pastry flour with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half cupful of granulated sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth cupful of peanut butter, and two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one cupful of milk, mix well and bake in well greased muffin tins twenty minutes. Serve hot with a salad for a main course at luncheon.

Highest Mountain

Measuring from the center of the earth, instead of from sea level, the highest mountain of the globe is not Mt. Everest, but Mt. Chimborazo, in the Andes, according to calculations made by a German scientist, says Literary Digest. On this scale Chimborazo's peak is 3,966.99 miles from the center of the earth; Everest's only 3,965.66. Four other peaks, Huascaran (Peru), Cotopaxi (Ecuador), Kenia (East Africa) and Kilimanjaro (Africa) are also "higher" above the earth's center than Everest. The difference in the measurement is due to the bulge of the earth at the equator.

Lee and Grant Fight on Same Side

WHENEVER the baseball team of St. Alban's school in Washington has a game, two descendants of Gen. Robert E. Lee and Gen. Ulysses S. Grant are to be seen fighting for the same cause. Lewis Vandergrift Lee of Virginia (left) is a descendant of the great southern commander, and Charles Scribner Grant of Chicago (right) traces back to the equally great Union general. Both are outfielders, and they are close friends.

DINNER GIVING

MY DEAR Mrs. Post: Would you please sum up a list, including all items, for my waitress to remember when setting the dinner table for a dinner party?

Answer: The items of a properly equipped dinner table include:

1. A tablecloth, or place mats, or whatever is to be the foundation of the setting.

2. A centerpiece, of fruit or flowers, or an ornament complete in itself.

3. A place plate (often called a service plate) marking the center of each place set for each person at table.

4. Flat silver: whichever implements are necessary for the courses to be served, but three forks, three knives and soup spoon, and either fruit spoon or oyster fork maximum amount.

5. Never less than four candlesticks or two candelabra. Two candles are absurdly out of proportion to any table bigger than a card table. (No candles in daylight.)

6. Two dishes of sweets on a refectory table, four dishes on a round or square table.

7. Glasses for whatever you serve. (Never put on glasses or pieces of flat silver, which are not to be used.)

8. Salt cellars and pepper pots between every two places.

9. A napkin on each place plate.

At a family dinner, bread and butter plates are allowed. But never at a halfway formal dinner party. Conventional place cards are not very suitable for dinners of less than ten or for luncheons of less than eight. On the other hand, if you like fancy place cards or favors, there is certainly no reason why you should not set your own table with what you like—especially at Christmas or Thanksgiving, or at a birthday party, or a wedding anniversary, or other intimate dinners. On more formal occasions, plain place cards are best.

Salted nuts are put either in small individual dishes above each plate, or in a pair of dishes; one at either side or end of the table. Certain hostesses always include them, others rarely if ever do, just as olives, radishes and celery are always served at certain tables and never at others.

CONCERNING THE YOUNG

DEAR Mrs. Post: Should a young girl of fifteen pay a party call after dining with strangers, although the hostess' daughter is a schoolmate of hers? And should she leave a visiting card? After such an invitation, is there anything a girl of this age can possibly do to return the invitation?

Answer: It would be polite to go to see them, yes. Whether to leave a card or not depends upon the custom of your community. If all young girls have cards, then yes. Otherwise, always best to do as others of your neighborhood do. Return this invitation by inviting your schoolmate to your house or to the movies or to whatever you can that you think would amuse her.

* * *

My dear Mrs. Post: I am going to college this fall and would like to know now what is expected of a boy when he invites a girl from out of town to any of the house-parties or dances at school. What share of her expenses is expected from him?

Answer: He should meet her at the station and take her to wherever she is to stay; send her a few flowers, perhaps, to wear at the dance; and he should make whatever agreeable engagements for her that he can. But he does not pay her railroad or her hotel bill—nor that of her chaperon.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a divorcee. How should my daughter introduce her father's wife to strangers? She stays with them sometimes because we both have agreed that she should not be deprived of either her mother or father.

Answer: As her "stepmother."

* * *

My dear Mrs. Post: When two boys and a girl (or perhaps two girls and a boy is more usual) walk or go to the movies together, or ride in a car, should the odd person sit between the other two, or is there some other way in better taste?

Answer: When they walk, the girls together, the boy on the curb side of the pavement. In a car, or at the movies the boy sits next to the girl whose especial friend he is. If he knows both equally well then he sits wherever there is place—next to one or the other, or he can perfectly well sit between them. On the street a man is not supposed to be sandwiched, because he must walk on the curb side of the street. At present this rule is being recognized as rather senseless.

Word Urge, as a Noun

Urge as a noun has been restored to the language gradually within the past twenty years, and can be said to be in good standing again, says Literary Digest. As a noun, it was in restricted use in the early Seventeenth century, then disappeared until Walt Whitman brought it to light in 1884 in "Leaves of Grass": "Oh, I am sure they really came from Thee, The urge, the ardor, the unconquerable will."

Steady Filtration of Japanese Into Brazil

Japanese colonists in Brazil now number about 140,000, according to an investigation made recently with the assistance of the bureau of international research of Harvard university and Radcliffe college. They are there as the result of a varying stream of emigration which began about 1907.

These colonists own about 1,225,000 acres, and the greater part of them are settled in the state of Sao Paulo—where they number 125,000—and the adjoining state of Minas Geraes. A few thousand live in the northern part of the country.

The first Japanese colony was established in 1912, in Iguape, Sao Paulo, where the Overseas Enterprise Joint Stock company of Japan owns at present a plantation of more than 154,000 acres. The immigration began with contract laborers, needed because the coffee industry was suffering from a shortage of labor. Practically all the Japanese in this region are engaged in agriculture.

The government-subsidized Yokohama-Buenos Aires line of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha brings the emigrant to his new home and the supervision of the Overseas company continues in Brazil.

Year of Dryness

Perhaps 1934 will be known in history as the year of the drought. Abnormally dry weather prevailed over Central Europe and in early June it damaged German crops to a minimum of 25 per cent. In England more than 160 rural areas were short of water and the rainfall for the year ending May 31 was the lowest ever recorded. The level of the Thames fell so much that fish were landlocked in many backwaters.—Literary Digest.

Little Girl's Face Inflamed by Psoriasis

Healed by Cuticura

"My little girl's face was so inflamed that her eyes were swollen almost shut. The trouble was diagnosed as psoriasis. She scratched night and day and was not able to obtain rest. The scratching aggravated the trouble and each finger tip was red and swollen with infection. She became so emaciated that she was very pathetic looking.

"After three months' suffering I recalled the Cuticura treatment used by my mother. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and used them according to directions. The first treatment brought relief and she is now healed." (Signed) Mrs. Marie I. Johnson, 4720 Ames Ave., Omaha, Neb., March 14, 1934.

THE STRIKE CRISIS

There is a maelstrom of discontent sweeping over certain sections of our proud state and the results are greviously unwholesome to labor and society. Vicious action from labor strikes the past thirty days has brought deplorable conditions upon the people thru loss from destruction of property, and bloodshed. It is a serious situation of uneasiness, restlessness and disorder, causing poverty to the innocent and bringing business and wage to a standstill.

There is no use to argue over the strike situation—there is little gained in peace-persuasion when men connive with each other and secretly plan to overthrow peaceful labor conditions, in order to disturb overlords or employer and with no definite promise for bettering the position of the employe.

The conflict between labor and capital is no new fight; it has existed for ages and compromises for settlement are few. At this day and age it is disappointing to reflect upon how little has been accomplished toward amicable agreements to do away with strikes. Since the strike motive is not an American institution, it behooves us to be on guard against the vehemence of foreign influence. Communism is a deadly foe to family contentment and happiness.

The cycle of sciences, arts and all the achivements of the human mind, is the most miraculous proof of the superiority of man's wisdom and knowledge as a conqueror of all he attempts; and who never writes defeat or failure in whatever he undertakes. The sheer story interest of the working knowledge of man is today's marvelous description of what is going on in great engineering projects; such as the expansion and invention in the adventures of electricity, structural iron and bridge work, tunneling mountains; massive concrete dams; miles and miles of aqueducts of gigantic proportions, all for the advancement of human-kind for generations to come! One need not go out of California to find any and all of these great projects in operation. No state has a larger field for expansion and the supply of engineering skill, than the Golden State. Its surface is only scratched, compared with its future possibilities as an Empire.

Notwithstanding the fact that the majority of people are hampered with the drudge of being "too busy," it may seem bombastic when the idle army of the land numbers into the millions. But to many who seem to be busy, are not at work at all. This is a going age, and more energy is spent "on the go" with less profit, among the masses, than since the days of American Independence. We choose to be busy, mostly, doing the unprofitable things; if it gives a thrill and the desired fun, that is enough pay. One object of the New Deal, as we take it, is to provide shorter working hours and higher wages. This would be an excellent opportunity to appropriate a lot of spare time to something else besides working for a living. If we were to redeem this spare time with educational reading, bodily recreation and calm living, we would be saner people and enjoy more of the privileges that are given to us.

* * * *

Stability of government exercised along constitutional proceedures may be termed the cure-all for most every, if not all, our economic ills. We must have right principles in force—men with tremendous action, backed by self-confidence, increased personal efficiency and enough added interest and concientious belief to make a courageous effort in behalf of the common citizen of today. The outstanding contribution most needed is a government of equality and up to the mark of square dealing without partiality. We need men with mental background and understanding sufficient to grasp the puzzling problems which will give those in moderate means the same consideration as the wealthy receive, also the powerful overlords who use their power and influence to legislate for the safety of their interests and welfare.

* * * *

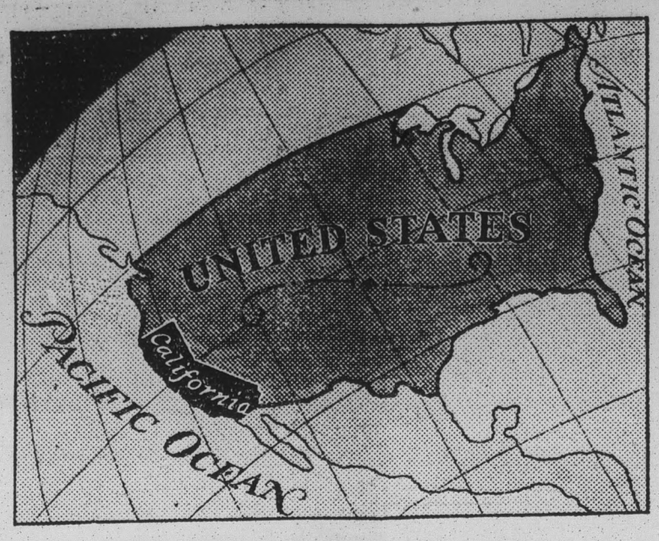

Of all the modern inventions intended for saving human life and preventing tragic accidents, there are none more important than the seemingly simple automatic signal at the busy intersections of avenues. Millions have been educated to observe them and the accident toll is at minimum, as compared with most accidents on the boulevards. It is something more than the stop-and-go-sign, but in addition there is the synchronized electric green and red lights denoting signal by night. Millions of motorists are guided every day by this sure safety device, costing installed, close to $2,000 each at those corners where in use. There are tens of thousands of these self operating machines all over the land, and their value is inestimable, preventing chaos and fatal accidents every day.

* * * *

If individuals as well as governments could supply cooperation instead of competition in the realm of trade and commerce, this would be a vastly more beautiful and peaceful world to live in Instead of destroying, we would build; this would soon create not only a better world, but a fairer world, as well. There is too much disputing and rancor. Men often resort to strife first and reason afterwards in their efforts to settle disputes. Misunderstandings, jealousy, envy, self-justification, and the like are corrected not thru strife, but thru reason and amicable agreement. To be able to operate business, free from these biting traits would indeed be a deliverance!

* * * *

Our National indebtedness, commonly termed the public debt, is a grievous bug-bear, and in its present amount the startling sum of 27 billion dollars records the largest sum since we became an independent American government. Just after the close of the World War, the debt was increased to within $500,000,000 of the present amount. It is said that the present national tax total will be wholly insufficient to meet the demands, even though it absorbs more than a quarter of the national income. It is therefore, very probable that the tax bogie will be more than a nightmare with a new draft upon the taxpayer.

ROBERT ARMSTRONG AS REPORTER AT ORPHEUM

Newspaper business mixes with society on the screen of the Orpheum theatre, Fifth avenue at B street, with the program opening Thursday afternoon for a three day run.

Under the title of "Hell Cat", the screen feature will star Robert Armstrong, in the role of a hard boiled newspaper reporter and Ann Sothern as a vixenish and spoiled society debutante. Minna Gombell is cast in the sympathetic role of a sob-sister in a production which is replete with pathos and comedy.

Heading the stage entertainment will be Gladys and Will Ahearn who for more than two years wrecked audiences with their funny antics while starring in Carroll's Revue. Harold Alberto, internationally known English comic, also will appear in a featured spot on the program with his magical cane. Hartman also announced that the balance of the program would include many well known eastern acts who have just come to the Pacific coast. Ted Mack and his band have prepared several novelty features as a part of the stage entertainment. A newsreel, comedy, cartoon and novelty will complete the entertanment.

For the four day program starting on Sunday, the film version of Charlotte Bronte's immortal story, "Jane Eyre" has been booked as the leading screen attraction. This story of an orphan who after much adversity becomes the wife of an English nobleman, is one of the strongest dramas of the year.

The program of stage entertainment will find another well balanced program of headline-vaudeville acts. Ted Mack and his band will again present a series of specialties.

AMERICAN LEGION

Unit No. 433

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

The yearly installation of officers was held last night(Thursday) at Wallace hall, under auspices of Mrs. Louise Waibel, past district president assisted by Oceanside unit. A large attendance included among many other honored guests, Mrs. Nellie Fitzpatrick, district president; Mrs. Mary Robbins, president La Jolla unit; Mrs. Mary Sanford, president Harild Angier unit and Mrs. Janet Diamond, president post 6 unit auxiliary. Mrs. Anna Forsythe gave an unusually beautiful rendition of "America the Beautiful" in a vocal solo.

Mrs. Pearl Wood, president announced an executive meeting to be held within a few days, members to be notified details by card.

The Ocean Beach unit will go to La Jolla next Thursday night July 26 to assist with the installation of the new officers in that unit. We feel greatly honored with this invitation. All officers or members wishing to take part in this ceremony notify Grace Chadwick.

The district meeting will be held at Coronado Tent city this coming Sunday July 22. Everyone come who can.

The past president, Mrs. Grace Chadwick wishes to take this opportunity to thank the Ocean Beach News for the wonderful cooperation they have given our unit this past year.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Dr. J. H. Fussel, secretary general of the Point Loma Theosophical Society spoke on "The Great Heresy" last Sunday afternoon. Dr. Emma Wilcox, Miss Alice Peirce and Orange Clark supported the speaker in answering questions. Dr. Fussell pointed out that in the oriental philosophies heresy was not the refusal to comply with the teachings of the established church, but the belief that we are separate from one another and from the universe. That was and is the 'great heresy.' "If we are a part of all that is, then we have a part to play in the sufferings of mankind. Universal Brotherhood is the denial of the great heresy", he said.

Dr. de Purucker in responding to a question on the penalty of setting oneself against the life of the universe, said in part:

"If you turn your faces backwards and instead of following nature's fundamental law of progress, which means an ever-expanding consciousness, and ever more fully evolving power, you swim in adversum flumen, against the current and you lose proportionately. Your consciousness shrinks and instead of advancing forwards to become familiar with the gods, our forefathers, which is the ultimate destiny of man, you go backwards towards the beasts, towards the plants, towards the as yet unevolved, infinitesimal entities that dwell in the rocks and make them. You lose in power, you lose in faculty, you lose in feeling, you lose in everything, and progressively so. This is the penalty for running counter to the universal fundamental law."

At three o'clock next Sunday afternoon Dr. Gottfried de Purucker wll deliver a lecture in the Temple of Peace on "Facts and Fiction in High Places." All are welcome. There will be music, which includes a recital of organ music during the half-hour preceding the hour of the meeting. Come early!

ELEVEN RECRUITS WANTED FOR SEA SCOUT TROOP

Cruises were made the last week to the fishing barges and to lower San Diego bay with aquaplaning as a sport on the latter cruise. These cruises are very much enjoyed by those who have made them.

At the present time there is a drive on for recruits to fill the vacancies which have been made by boys leaving the city. Only eleven recruits are required. In addition to the requirements of the Sea Scouts by-laws, the ship requires that a boy must be a First Class scout of merit badge rating. He must be willing to work for advancement.

The ship meets Thursday evenings at 7:30 at the Ocean Beach Baptist church. Thursday, July 19, Col. Rothwell of La Jolla spoke to the ship.

Anyone interested in entering the ship may get full details from any of the following members: L. L. Klus, skipper of La Jolla; Clem Gage 4635 Saratoga, R. Diamond, 5020 Long Branch, D. By FRANCIS MARION LAW,
President American Bankers Association

THE banks of the nation provide the machinery through which pass daily many millions of checks and drafts, aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars.

F. M. LAW

The banks are largely financing the Federal Government in its Recoverey Program, involving the greatest peacetime expenditures ever known.

Likewise the banks are largely financing the current credit needs of states, counties, cities, public schools and other political sub-divisions, all of which have intimately to do with the daily affairs of all of the people.

Each day banks throughout the country are making hundreds of thousands of new loans and they are renewing and extending old loans for the accommodation of a vast number of borrowers, these borrowers being individuals, corporations and partnerships and their loans being incident to agriculture, industry and trade in every community in the land.

The banks, through their trust departments, are continuing the work which they have faithfully carried on throughout the depression and are protecting trust funds placed in their care against the worst shrinkage of values ever known. Included in this activity is the service the banks are performing in connection with administering the affairs of widows and orphans.

The banks, through the medium of their savings and thrift deposit departments, are furnishing safety for the accumulations of many millions of people and on this class of deposits reasonable interest is paid.

Banks are providing a service for the safe-deposit and safe-keeping of the possessions, papers and securities of a very large number of people.

The officers of banks are unstintedly and unselfishly giving advice and counsel to the people of their communities, thereby to a considerable extent guiding their daily financial and fiscal affairs during this most difficult period of disturbance.

The Banking Structure Strengthened

The banking structure as it is today has been greatly strengthened and the process of strengthening still goes on. Banking is not a closed science. The banking system which we have had was not good enough, and I earnestly believe that an able and non-partisan commission should be set up to make a study of our numerous banking laws to the end that a properly correlated banking system might be worked out and submitted for consideration to the next Congress.

A good system would include rigid requirements as to management, intelligent and impartial supervision and, in due time, unification of supervision. Such a system, composed of banks adequately capitalized, capably managed and conscientiously supervised, would eliminate any possibility of a recurrence of what has happened in the past four years.

The temporary Federal deposit insurance plan under which deposits in banks up to $2,500 for each account are insured has been in effect for six months and has proven a potent factor in restoring confidence. Only two small banks out of over fourteen thousand holding membership in the fund have failed during this six months' period. The temporary plan has been extended very wisely for a year, and the amount of the insured deposit has been increased to $5,000, thus insuring in full over 98% in number of the depositors in the country's banks.

Hoarded money is returning to the banks and deposits are showing a vast increase. Banks everywhere are superliquid, meaning that they have an unusually heavy proportion of their deposits in cash. There are two kinds of unemployment in this country—unemployment of men and unemployment of dollars. These men and these dollars must be put to work. Banks in strong and highly liquid condition are prepared and determined to do their proper part in putting money to work.

Requisites for Grants of Bank Credit

That brings me to the all important question of the granting of credit by banks. Two things are necessary to increase bank credit:

1st. The banks must be liquid and confident in their own strength.

2nd. Business men must further lay their fears and regain confidence to the point where they will dare to think and plan ahead.

The first requisite is accomplished. The second is in process. Bank credits will increase and money will go to work as soon as business men get over their disinclination to borrow and this will be when they begin to see profits within their reach.

In past depressions the real movement of the expansion in bank credit has always come after general business recovery got under way and not before. The number of good credit risks is increasing daily. Not in my time have od borrowers been so warmly welcome at banks as they are today. Nevfore has there been such competefor good loans, nor has the interest rate ever been so low. Every sound business in the country today can get what money it needs.

A Return of Normal Lending

Banks are badly needing loans for revenue purposes, and now that confidence in banks has been largely restored they are naturally returning to a more normal lending policy. Before the bank holiday the confidence of the people was shattered. The thought uppermost in the minds of depositors was the safety of their funds. Withdrawals from banks became increasingly heavy and general. Under such circumstances the banker, mindful of his primary responsibility to his depositors, was more concerned in the collection of loans than in the making of new loans. The result was a severe contraction of credit. For this the banker should not be blamed. He simply performed his manifest duty.

Bankers at this time are very properly viewing the credit needs of business with serious and sympathetic consideration. Applicants for loans are not always familiar with the rules governing bank credit and constructive and interested help on the part of the banker will bring about the making of many additional loans, without doing violence to any principle of good banking.

Certainly no one would advocate the making of unsound loans by banks. The creation of a large volume of unsound loans would not only weaken the banks—it would prolong the depression and wipe out some of the gains already made. It is to be earnestly hoped that no banker will yield under the pressure of his desire for earnings, or for any other reason, and make loans of the wrong sort. John Ottley of Atlanta, in a recent address, said—"The plan of lending freely and hoping for the best has never proven wise."

There are many needs for credit of kinds which are not within the province of commercial banks to meet. Likewise there are many types of credit, but there are also many types of credit facilities available—enough, it would seem, to meet the requirements of all classes of worthy borrowers.

The Duty of Every Banker

It is clearly the duty of every banker in the country to perform certain services. The most important are:

1. To afford perfect safety for deposits.

2. To grant credit to those who deserve it.

In the matter of credits the public must in fairness remember that commercial banks are not lending their own money, but the money of their depositors, represented very largely by the earnings and savings of the people. The people who own these deposits have accumulated them through years of labor and sacrifice, and in many cases the deposit represents their all. These depositors have the right to call for their money at any time, or at most on short notice. Deposits constitute a sacred trust.

There are certain basic principles in sound banking that must be held onto even in this period of change, but the progressive banker must be responsive to changing conditions and he must be active in seeking proper opportunities to meet the sound needs of his customers.

In a recent message to Congress, the President said—"I am greatly hoping that repeated promises that private investment and private initiative to relieve the government in the immediate future of much of the burden which it has assumed will be fulfilled."

Repeated assurance has been given by the Administration that there is no desire on its part to continue government lending a moment longer than is necessary and that at the earliest possible time the government will gladly give way to the banks and other lending institutions. This, of course, is as it should be and we are all earnestly looking forward to the time when private initiative and enterprise shall have recovered its vitality sufficiently to throw government crutches away.

Numerous bank failures have created in the minds of many a grossly exaggerated idea as to the losses of depositors in closed banks. The record indicates that depositors in banks which closed in the past three years will realize on an average about 65c on the dollar. That would mean a loss of 35%. It has been estimated that during the depression the average value of investments in stocks lost about 90%; bonds similarly declined approximately 60% and commodities 6[illegible]%.

Deposits in sound banks continued to be worth 100% throughout the depression and 90% of the bank deposits of the country were not affected.

Bankers Deserve Confidence

The country can have full confidence in the integrity and competence of the bankers of the country. Out of the lessons of the last few years has come experience that will be valuable to the banker and to his community. He can be counted on to show a proper appreciation of his responsibilities and obligations and to take his place among those who are making earnest and unselfish effort to promote recovery. He is not infallible, but with every power that lies within him I believe he may be depended upon to fulfill his duty as a custodian of the people's money, a dispenser of credit and as fearing American Citizen im sincere regard for the con

Chadwick Brings Murderers of Chinese to Justice.

This is the third of a series of articles telling for the first time the inside details of some of San Diego County's most notorious crimes, as related by the officer who investigated and solved them. This man, Richard W. Chadwick, is now a candidate for the office of sheriff of this county. His experience in the field of crime detection and apprehension has been wide and varied, witness his knowledge of the habits, the vices and the virtues of the denizens of chinatown, as shown in his solution of the lurid slaying of the kindly old chinese merchant, Sia Wah.

Sia Wah, the much beloved and honest proprietor of a medicine and herb store at the corner of 4th and J street, in April of 1920, did not answer the repeated knocking on his door by two of his countrymen in search of one of those mysterious potions the chinese sometimes use, and this neglect on the part of one usually so prompt and punctual as Sia Wah aroused some misgivings and surprise. When further knocking and rattling at the door brought no response, they became uneasy as to his welfare and called the officer on the beat. With him, they forced open the screen and peering through the glass of the door beheld a sight which caused them to recoil in horror. The officer promptly forced the door and the sight which then met their eyes must be to this day imprinted indelibly upon their memories.

Sprawled upon the floor in a slowly widening pool of blood, clad only in his nightclothes the headless body of their friend lay stiffened in death. His safe door was open, its contents were strewn about and beside the body a bloody cleaver and heavy coil spring gave mute evidence of how the horrible crime had been comitted. Police headquarters were quickly notified and detectives led by Chadwick were dispatched to the scene. An examination of the premises convinced the officers that aside from the coil spring nothing in the way of a tangible clue was available at the time, the cleaver apparently having come from the victim's own kitchen. Little information could be obtained from the chinese neighbors, so Chadwick set about interviewing a prominent man in the "Four Family Association" to which Sia Wah belonged. From this man he learned that Sia Wah often kept money, papers, passports, etc., in his safe, for those of his countrymen whom he trusted and who cared to avail themselves of this service. He also learned that the victim should have had approximately seventeen hundred dollars in his safe at the time of the murder, none of which was found. Concluding from this man's information that Sia Wah had no known enemies who would care to kill him, Chadwick started a move to find who among his supposed friends could possibly have been in a position to commit the deed; for obviously Sia Wah would not have opened his safe for a stranger or for a known enemy, and opened it he must have, for it bore no marks of violent handling. The heavy coil spring, of the type used to pull shut the door on many of the suspected lottery and opium dives had not come from the murder premises, and a minute check was ordered of all such suspected spots. It was soon discovered that a spring was missing from the door at 215 J street, a place raided by the officers a few days before the murder.

At about this time the association of which the victim had been a member offered a reward of five thousand dollars for the apprehension of the slayer or slayers; one thousand dollars to come from a friend of the deceased. This was put down as a suspicious point, as the donor, Song Kee, was known to be a man of small means and in addition was one of the suspected narcotic peddlers and addicts taken in the raid at 215 J street.

A constant watch was put upon this suspect and soon Chadwick learned that Song Kee had been seen in company with another chinese, Henry Chung heading towards the water front with a bundle. A careful search along the water front revealed a pair of blood stained trousers, but nothing more. A search of the home of Henry Chung revealed a pair of shoes in good repair, hidden back of a fence, dark stains on them were analysed and proved to be blood.

Chadwick watched the activities of Kee and Chung for two days and then took them into custody, while he proceeded with an intensive search of the premises at 215 J street from which the coil spring had come, and into which Kee and Chung had strolled occasionally since the murder. Upstairs in an apparently unoccupied room officers found an old dresser, a broken chair and an apple box; from the ceiling dropped two electric light cords. His knowledge of the thrift of the chinese led Chadwick to observe these cords, particularly as the size of the tiny room plainly showed no necessity for them both and placing the chair on top the dresser and the apple box on top of the chair he proceeded to disconnect the light cords; the first one he loosened was genuine the second was a fake and it came away in his hand as he drew out the last screw revealing a yawning hole where the connecting wires should have been. Reaching his hand into this hole he first withdrew a huge roll of blood stained currency, then an opium pipe, then one after the other a package of opium, a package of morphine and a package of cocaine, until in all he had handed down more than two thousand dollars worth of illicit drugs. From the bloody currency the finger prints of both Song Kee and Henry Chung were developed; they were confronted with this evidence along with the stained shoes and trousers but they denied any connection with them. They were subjected to an intensive series of questionings and finally confessed commission of the murder and robbery of Sia Wah. A short time before the trial however they repudiated their confession and the officers were forced to prove every step of the case they had built against them.

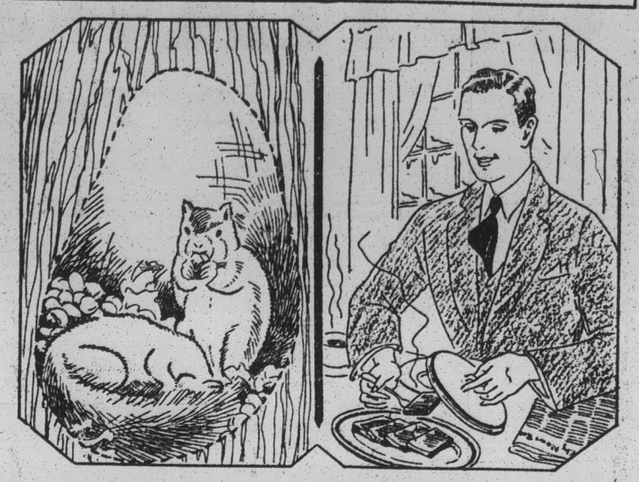

A jury in Superior Court found both guilty and they were sentenced to serve life in the penitentiary.

The story by Mr. Chadwick next week will deal with a startling narcotic case which occured in this county.

Better Breakfasts

DON'T envy the bear or any of the other creatures to whom the winter means nothing but a long luxurious sleep. On cold mornings, perhaps you can't help giving a wistful thought to their undisturbed slumber. But if civilization has made alarm clocks necessary to man, it also offers him more and more good things for breakfast to make him glad that morning comes every twenty-four hours.

Of course, there's always coffee, with its rich aroma that is a welcome intruder even in the most possum-y brain. And there's always the piping hot comfort of cereal and cream. But these old familiars are only the beginning of good breakfasts that make the gloomiest morning something to wake up for. How about this menu for a stormy morning? Doesn't it make the hibernating squirrel and his few poor nuts an object of your deepest pity?

JIM LONDOS IS GREAT MONEY EARNING ATHLETE

Wrestling in San Diego is the most attractive sport at present. The last four weekly shows at the Coliseum Athletic club have enticed a total of 10,800 enthusiastic fans through the turnstyles and each week has shown an increase. Such great wrestlers as Dick Daviscourt and Rudy Skarda of San Diego and Leo Numa, Bonnie Muir, Jack Smith, Ivan Managoff, Count George Zarynoff and other of mat fame are responsible for the popularity of the sport. The San Diego programs are equal to Madison Square Garden attractions and are unsurpassed any where in the world.

Coming wrestling shows will no doubt pack the San Diego arena to capacity as Big Jim Browning, Ed Don George, Ed Strangler Lewis and Gus Soonenberg all whom are former title holders, will appear here within the next few weeks. Jimmy Londos, present title holder and holder of third place as the world's greatest money earning athlete, will also be brought to San Diego by wrestling promoter Linn Platner. Only two men have earned more money in sport than Londos, they are Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney. Babe Ruth the king of baseball comes into fourth place.

Packed houses every Tuesday night will be the order of things at the Coliseum for the next several weeks and the high caliber programs certainly deserve the patronage they are getting. No one sees one of these wrestling programs without getting their money's worth. Strangely enough, a large portion of the crowds are ladies. It seems to be the one sport they go for in a big way.

M. E. CHURCH SERVICES

"The Christian Witness" will be the subject of the sermon next Sunday morning at the Point Loma Methodist church, corner of Sunset Cliffs and Saratoga avenues. The Rev. Mr. Hughes who recently came to be the pastor of the church, will preach. The text for the morning will be taken from II Corinthians 4:6. "For God who said 'Let light shine out of darkness' has shone in my heart, to give the light of the knowledge of God's glory." The service will begin at 11 o'clock. The music will be under the direction of Mrs. Ray Forsythe.

The church school begins at 9:45 a. m., and conducts classes in religious instruction for all age groups.

The Epworth League meets in the evening at 7 o'clock. Mr. Hughes will lead the meeting. All young people of high school age are invited.

SYNOPSIS

At the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for cattle raising. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife names Forlorn Valley. Joel Hensley settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water for irrigation. Kershaw kills Hensley and the blood-feud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease. Silas Babson, banker, schemes to control the irrigation and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley. Nate tells Lorry he and Owen Kershaw, Lorry's brother, met in France just before Owen was killed. They became buddies, and Nate promised that if he survived Owen he would look after Lorry as a brother might do. Babson, determined to secure Lorry's lake-site and Nate's dam-site, makes legal application for the allocation of flood waters to the Forlorn Valley irrigation district, which he organizes. With money advanced by Nate, Lorry clears up her indebtedness to Babson. Nate finds he is falling in love with Lorry. Babson discovers Nate is behind a power project which threatens to ruin the banker's schemes.

He was possessed of a warm feeling of elation as he motored up to the Circle K and in a field below the ranch house found Lorry with her cowboys working in the branding corral. She wore the traditional boots, overalls, shirt, and hat of a cowman. She carried a four-strand thirty-foot calf rope of braided rawhide and bestrode a buckskin horse that knew his business.

Tichenor climbed up on the fence and watched her work; he thrilled with professional pride as her small loop went under the belly of each victim and curled up and over the legs of the calf as the little animal went forward; he observed how gently she laid him down, saving undue strain on her riata, and dragged him through the soft loose dirt to the fire. Rube Tenney, working a calf along the fence below Nate, said out of the corner of his mouth as he passed:

"Ninety-two calves so far today and she hasn't missed her cast yet."

It was long since he had sat on the top rail of a corral fence, comfortable in his shirt-sleeves, and looked at good stock! Long since he had done any shooting and fishing, long since his knees had gripped anything save an academy-trained horse.

He resolved definitely not to give it up. When the world wearied him he could always come back to Eden Valley and enjoy the society of people who had mastered the great art of silent companionship.

Lorry had waved her riata at him as he took his seat on the fence; thereafter she paid no attention to him. She was busy. So he sat on the fence for an hour, dreaming, remembering, planning. Finally he saw a horse standing, with drooping head, outside the corral. A riata was coiled on the saddle.

"My horse, Lorry?" he called to the girl.

"Whenever you get your job of dreaming done with," she called back. He climbed down, cinched the saddle tighter, and swung aboard. "Ride him, cowboy," Lorry cried joyously, and as if this was a signal, the horse went into action. Tichenor stayed with him for six jumps, then sailed off into space and lit on his hands and knees in the soft dirt; whereupon everybody laughed long and joyously at his discomfiture. A dozen feet away the horse was standing, gazing curiously at him.

Lorry rode up to the fence and looked at him. "What happened?" she asked sympathetically. He picked himself up, furious with embarrassment and glared at her. "I've been away a long time. I'm soft. I can't grip 'em like I used to," he mumbled, and caught up the horse. The brute tried to throw him again, but this time Tichenor stuck, and the horse, deciding he had had the worst of the argument, jogged sedately away to the corral gate, swung into it for Nate to slip the wooden latch, pushed it open with his shoulder, pushed it shut again and sidled humbly up to the latch for his rider to slide it home again. Tichenor shook out his loop, found an unbranded calf and roped it neatly around the hind legs. Lorry smiled her approval and before her smile his anger and embarrassment melted and he smiled back.

"Nate, I bet Rube a hundred dollars you'd ride him straight up and stay with him. You rode him straight up but you didn't stay with him—so you lost a hundred dollars for me."

"Why didn't you bet Rube another hundred I'd miss my first calf."

"I did," she confessed sadly. "I'm out two hundred on you."

"Go bet him two hundred more I can rope ten straight."

She called her bet to Rube Tenney. "Taken," the superintendent yelled back. "And another hundred he misses one calf in the first five."

"Take it," Tichenor urged. Lorry took it and he won both bets for her.

"First time I ever knew a man to lay off ropin' nine years an' come back with his old-time skill," Rube Tenney complained.

"Once a year, for six years past, I've roped daily for a week in the rodeo held at Madison Square garden," Tichenor confessed. "The first time I tried it was on a private bet. I was in a box with a lot of society wasters and there was a rich smart Aleck there I didn't like. So I honeyed him into a bet of ten thousand dollars I could rope and hog-tie a calf in twenty seconds."

"Why, that's slow. I can beat that," Lorry challenged.

"Not on a borrowed horse, with a borrowed rope and an educated calf, Lorry. The crowd thought I was part of the show when I rode out in a top hat and dress clothes and tied the critter in fourteen seconds."

"Did you collect the ten thousand?" the practical Mr. Tenney queried.

"I did."

"I'll bet you ten thousand I can beat your time. We're about finished with this bunch so we'll let all but four out of the corral and haze the others with their mothers down the field about a hundred yards. Then Rube shall open the gate and we'll start a calf from the other end of the corral straight for his mother. The gate shall be the dead line, and the second the calf is through it he's yours to rope and tie. I noticed the other day you carry a stop-watch. How about it, neighbor?" Lorry asked.

"Give me a tie rope," was all he said, and handed his stop-watch to Rube Tenney. The calf, a husky youngster about two months old, then went out the gate for all he was worth.

Tichenor Stayed With Him for Six Jumps.

Forty feet beyond the gate Tichenor's rope settled over his head and stopped him; even as he stopped, the man was going out of the saddle; crawling up along the rope, he flopped the calf, tied him and rolled him over; then Rube Tenney inspected the tie and pronounced it perfect. "Fifteen and a fifth," he announced. "Good fast work, Nate."

They rode back into the corral and watched Lorry haze her calf out. As his tail cleared the gate post she snagged him; like Nate she lit running, flanked the calf expertly and tied him. Tichenor came down and rolled the little animal over twice. "Nothing wrong with that tie," he announced. "By crikey, you're strong."

"Give the lady ten thousand dollars," Rube Tenney ordered. "Fourteen flat. An' you've traveled a long way for a lickin', mister."

Nate Tichenor, using the flat of his saddle for a desk, wrote out the check. "Thanks," the girl said casually, and waved the check to dry the ink. "Easy come, easy go. I have no qualms at nicking you, Nate. I competed with the best men in the country at the Pendleton round-up last year and took second money. Came away from that show with eleven hundred dollars and met the September payroll."

"You're a man's woman," he told her feelingly. "I've never had more fun losing ten thousand dollars."

"And I've never had more fun winning it. You're a true blue sport, Nate, and a true blue sport never knows a regret." And she laughed and tore up the check.

He had no reply to make to this. Half angry and half prideful, he sat his horse, looking down at her with a queer, intense light in his eyes, seeing which Rube Tenney gathered his cowboys together and rode off with them toward headquarters. When they were out of hearing Nate Tichenor spoke:

"Lorry Kershaw, I've never loved a woman before, but I love you."

Tichenor knew the ghost of old Rance Kershaw was coming between him and his desire.

"I understand, Lorry," he said, finally. "Well, I'm good at waiting, but I certainly do crave the job of taking care of you."

She smiled up at him. "Well, I have resented your valet," she admitted, slyly. "What does a valet know about taking care of a man?"

He dismounted, squatted on his heels in the shadow of the corral and motioned her to sit beside him.

"Tell me anything except how much money you have," she suggested presently. "I'm not interested in that."

"Lorry, I'm the proprietor of a big dream. As a half-owner in a bond and brokerage house in New York I've made money enough to retire on now. But I'm too young to rust out, so I'm going to put over one big deal before I quit. Lorry, I'm the Mountain Valley Power company."

She stood up, gazing down at him reproachfully. "So you were the Santa Claus that gave me twice what my land was worth, were you?" Her tone was cold. "That was your nice little method of conferring charity, was it?"

"Well, it was a good price, Lorry, but the land was worth that to me. Had anybody but you owned it I would have haggled and made a couple of hundred thousand dollars. But it wasn't charity. I wasn't in love with you when we closed that deal. That's happened since and I don't know why. I only know I'm glad it's happened, even if nothing should ever come of it. Sit down please. You can't pick a fight with me merely because I declined to take advantage of your ignorance of the value of what you held, plus your acute financial embarrassment."

She sat down.

"You and I are not popular in our little world," he went on. "I don't know how you feel about it, but that knowledge has always hurt me. My heart is here, where my people lie buried. I've wanted to do something big and constructive, accumulate a lot of money and employ it wisely—in this country. I—I want neighbors. I want to be thought well of." He waved his hand toward the east. "I don't belong in that country and I don't like it. I want to live here and you might as well know it now."

"Go on. I'm listening, Nate."

"You're going to marry me, sooner or later, and I want to know if you'd have any objection to living here six months of the year?"

"A little bit shorter than I care to consider, but I can stand it."

"Lorry, you're a darling. Well, I've found a way to popularize both clans. When the Mountain Valley Power company's dam is in, I'm going to sell water cheap to Forlorn Valley. They're irrigating from deep wells over there."

"Those people are a miserable lot, Nate. I was blackballed out of the women's club in Valley Center."

"So was my mother."

"I've never been invited to a party or a picnic or a dance or a barbecue, even by the people who come up here to picnic and fish and hunt on our ranch. I want no credit from those people, Nate."

A break in her voice caused him to glance sharply at her. Tears were rolling silently down her cheeks.

He gazed moodily down Eden Valley and watched the last rays of the sun gilding the crowns of the scattered pines. Yes, the people of Forlorn Valley had always been free to use Eden Valley for a playground.

"They can't come to Eden Valley any more," he decided aloud. "I'll put a sign up on the gate that leads from the open country to the Bar H." The mountaineer was speaking now. "I wouldn't have truck with your enemies, Lorry."

She leaned over, put her arm around his neck, drew his face down and kissed him. "I do love you, Nate. And we're sufficient unto ourselves, aren't we?"

He held her so close to him she could hear his heart thumping with the fierce joy that possessed him. He was happy at last; the thought came to him that never again would he be lonely. Nevertheless, he had dreamed a big dream and he recoiled from the prospect of abandoning it.

"We needn't be friendly with them, darling," he resumed, "but we can sell them water, make a lot of money out of them and save them a lot of money. And it's not altogether their fault that we've been ostracized. You've got to admit we weren't a wholesome crew."

"We'll ruin them," she cried, passionately, "and when they've been ruined we'll run cattle over their farms, Nate."

She was still recalcitrant, for she had been wounded deeply, and women do not forget their wounds as readily as men do. "I'm not interested, Nate. I am not my brother's keeper."

"I rather thought you might urge me to be nice to them," he complained a little sadly. And he went on to sketch the situation as he had conceived it, the girl listening alertly and forbearing to interrupt him. At the conclusion of his statement she said:

"Very well, Nate. I'll get religion and love mine enemies; they've struck me on one cheek, but for your sake I'll turn the other. But I'll not forgive Silas Babson. Nate, he killed my father just as surely as any Hensley ever killed a Kershaw or any Kershaw ever killed a Hensley. You said a moment ago you wouldn't have truck with my enemies. Well, that Babson is my enemy. Are you going to have truck with him?"

"I do not see how I can very well avoid that, Lorry. Forlorn Valley will have to form an irrigation district to get the water and you know Babson's their bellwether. He'll run the show."

"He mustn't run it with you. You'll run that show. I'll not have you playing second fiddle to a man that isn't fit to shine your boots. That's final."

"Well, how are you going to prevent it, spitfire?"

"If you do I'll not marry you."

"Threatening me, eh? Don't you realize none of my clan has ever been driven?"

She dodged that terse thrust. "I'll compromise with you. Be nice to the Forlorn Valleyites, if you wish, but smash Babson. I want him smashed," she added with quiet vehemence.

"But if I humor you, little wildcat, I'll have to smash the Bank of Valley Center, and when the bank's smashed all the depositors will be smashed with it."

"You don't truly love me," she chided him, petulantly.

"I can give up my love. I've lived twenty-nine years without it and I can live some more."

Again she put her arms around him and drew his face down to hers. "Why, we're feuding again, sweetheart," she murmured softly. "Have it your own way. I'd rather have you than the scalp of Silas Babson"—and she sealed that pronouncement with kisses.

"You win, Lorry. You can lead a mule to water but you can't make him drink. I'll smash Babson for you. And I have an ancient grudge against that rat Henry Rookby, too, so I'll knock him out of the best salaried position in Valley Center."

"What's wrong with Henry Rookby?"

"Once, when I was about sixteen years old, I walked around the block in Valley Center to avoid coming face to face with your brother Owen. Rookby saw me do it, so he followed me and twitted me about it. Implied I was afraid of Owen. Then he went back and talked with Owen and I saw the pair of them smiling in my direction. So I didn't avoid the meeting after that. Rookby would have liked to see a killing, I imagine, just to vary the routine of his dull life. So I bent my gun over his right shoulder—up between the shoulder and the neck—and knocked him flat on his back. And I said to him: 'Rookby, if you want a killing, say so and I'll kill you. I'm not looking for Kershaw—yet.'"

"And what did Owen say?"

Colors of Male Birds and Lizards Serve to Frighten Off Their Rivals

It's long been a popular idea that in the animal world the gay coloring of the male is bestowed upon him to attract a mate. This isn't really so, says Dr. G. Kingsley Nobel, curator of experimental biology at the American Museum of Natural History, for the brilliance of his dress serves rather to frighten away rivals than to attract the lady of his choice.

These conclusions reached through laboratory research, differed so widely from the views of Darwin and the majority of scientists that Doctor Noble deemed it desirable to re-study the problem under natural conditions. The United Clay Mines corporation, through its vice president, C. W. Hall, generously offered to help his field studies by placing at Doctor Noble's disposal a house in the New Jersey pine barrens, where the fence lizard, Sceloporous undulatus, was abundant. The male of this species bears on either side of his body a handsome stripe of blue which is nearly continuous with a spot of the same color on the throat as distinguished from the female which has little coloration.

"The males, as the season progresses," writes Doctor Noble in Natural History Magazine of the American Museum of Natural History, "becomes extremely pugnacious and establishes himself in a definite territory. If another male is dropped into that territory, the first tenant either goes into a full display, compressing his sides until his gorgeous blue stripe stands out in shimmering brilliancy, or else he dashes forward in most violent attack. If the trespasser is a female the male never displays. This difference in behavior observed at frequent intervals shows that the bright colors of the male fence lizard are employed to bluff possible rivals into withdrawing from a fight. The adornment of the male is not wedding finery but a gladiator's vestment."

Lucky Reptiles

The teeth of serpents and crocodilians as a rule are perpetually renewed, new ones growing out to replace the old as fast as they are worn out and disappear. This is believed to be largely responsible for the remarkable longevity of some of these creatures.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M. D.

Eyes and Teeth

A YOUNG man was having his eyes examined by a physician, and to the surprise of physician and patient the eyes had improved considerably since the examination one year previous.

As his work and reading habits had not changed, the physician was at a loss to account for the improvement until he asked some questions.

"You are feeling better physically than you were a year ago, are you not?"

"Yes!" the patient answered, "I feel brighter and more like work, not so lazy as I was a year ago."

"Had any dental work done?"

"Yes, I had an X-ray of my teeth and the dentist found three teeth that were badly infected and removed them. I felt lazier than ever for a few weeks but I feel fine now."

This was the explanation of the improvement in the eyesight.

Dr. William F. C. Steinbugler tells us in the New York State Journal of Medicine that pyorrhoea, dental decay, and root infection are frequently causes of eye infection, and, in addition to affecting the eyesight, set up local inflammations in and about the eyes. The most dangerous form of tooth infection is that in which the pulp (nerve and blood vessels) is affected, as this diseased or poisonous material is forced into the blood stream and hence goes to all parts of the body including the eye.

Doctor Steinbugler admits that every effort should be made to preserve the teeth owing to their importance in breaking up food and allowing the digestive juice in the mouth to moisten and soften food, and turn starch into sugar, nevertheless it should be remembered that in doubtful cases the eye should be given first consideration and the removal of infection from the mouth should come before preserving the teeth.

During the war a very skillful pilot began to make poor landings. He was ordered to report for medical examination and it was found that his tonsils were in very bad condition. Removal of tonsils restored his vision to normal and there were no more poor landings. Infection was the cause of the trouble.

If therefore your eyesight seems to be failing or you are troubled with any inflammation about the eyes, a visit to the dentist is advisable before having your glasses changed.

Asthma and Hay Fever

I SOMETIMES wonder what hay fever and asthma sufferers must think as they read daily of the wonderful cures being obtained by various physicians throughout the world, and yet despite the various treatments they have received, they still suffer with hay fever and asthma.

What are the various "cures" that are thus recorded?

The cures are first aimed at the causes of these two ailments—sensitiveness to certain foods, furs, feathers, pollen of plants, various dusts in the home; ailments or deformities in the nose, throat, or bronchial tubes; acute infections such as influenza, bronchitis, pleurisy, scarlet fever, whooping cough, measles.

Before treatment is undertaken the patient is thoroughly examined and tested by the various substances, now known to be hundreds in number. Treatment is then given according to what the examination and various tests showed.

This treatment consists of various drugs, of which adrenalin stands first; proper attention to diet, rest, and outdoor exercise; vaccines; the surgical removal of adenoids, tonsils, growths, or deformities in nose and throat; the use of pollen extracts before and during the hay fever season.

Dr. T. S. Heaton, Toronto, who made a study of the various causes and different methods of treatment, gives conclusions reached after reviewing some of the work and writings of sixty-six physicians doing research work on hay fever and asthma.

He believes that the treatment of hay fever and asthma by the avoidance of the substances that cause these conditions is the best method at this time. Rooms in which these substances cannot enter and the use of air filters are of great value in fighting these ailments. Avoiding the foods known to cause hay fever or asthma is the best method of treating this particular type. "Certainly asthma and hay fever are difficult to cure. Certainly, too, the special treatment by extracts can help many at any age."

So, if you are an asthma or hay fever sufferer and think you have tried everything, just ponder over these remarks by Doctor Heaton, and try to discover if there is not something you have left undone.

"The Worsted People"

In a certain English community the people produced an unusually high grade of woolen cloth. Persecuted and forced to move, they were thenceforward called "the worsted people," and their product the worsted people's cloth, or plain "worsted."

DETACHABLE CAPES MAKE FOR VARIETY

PATTERN 9943

Detachable capes are so fascinating and so smart! This is a lovely dress for town wear, and it is adaptable to all sorts of occasions. It's especially attractive if made of a dotted print, as shown in the picture; but any of the checks, stripes or figured fabrics are nice for it. The dress is uniquely fashionable in that it combines tall slenderness with well-planned curves. The curved hip line is repeated by the curve of the yoke, collar and cape. Very becoming to everyone!

Pattern 9943 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 4 yards 39-inch fabric and ¼-yard contrasting.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York, N. Y.

TEST OF GENIUS

Two friends, one married and the other a bachelor, were at the latest play, admiring the performance of a famous actor.

"By Jove," the married man murmured, "he's wonderful. The way he displays affection toward the leading lady, eh?"

"Yes—pretty good," the bachelor agreed, "but, you know, he's been married to her for eighteen years."

"What? Really married! Gosh—what an actor!"—London Tit-Bits.

Varying Ideas as to Practice of Politeness

"It was Montesquieu's notion that 'It is pride that renders us polite,'" said Mr. Cato Ninetails; "yet a little further along in 'L'Esprit des Lois' he speaks of people 'who 'as they are always employed about their own business have not the politeness which is founded on indolence; and they really have not the leisure to attain it.' This would seem to imply that politeness is a matter of idleness, and, by extension, that indolence develops pride. Perhaps it does; few of us have enough of it to find out certainly. On the other hand, other authorities declare that 'politeness pays,' a dictum that has nothing to do with pride or leisure. Probably nobody is more interested in making things pay than the busy man. That's the principal reason why he keeps busy. Apprehension also has a considerable influence on politeness. If discourtesy is likely to get us into trouble, the probabilities are that we shall be polite; but perhaps this aspect of the question is included in the assertion that politeness pays.

"Whether it is pride, leisure or acquisitiveness that develops politeness, there is none too much of it. Sometimes we are impolite through ignorance, sometimes through carelessness, sometimes intentionally, sometimes because we are in a hurry and sometimes because we won't bother about it. With all that, the question of what constitutes politeness still remains. As in the case of a great many other words, the definition is likely to vary a great deal both geographically and chronologically. Politeness here may not be politeness there, and politeness now may not have been politeness then. Hence the wail 'O tempora, O mores!' Times and things and people are not what they once were, or what we are convinced they were—as long as we do not examine the records carefully.

"Politeness, of course, should mean well, but much of it merely says well or does well; it sounds well and looks well, but a little analysis will show that it does not mean anything. Its distinctive quality, as generally regarded, is polish, poise and grace. Sincerity is desirable, but, apparently, not essential, and it is not always even expected. Its purpose is mostly to make a good impression, which, no doubt, is what inspired Montesquieu's opinion that it is the effect of pride. On the other hand, a sincere and generous clumsiness may be—and often is—much more polite than the most polished utterance or graceful action. In such a case politeness neither says well nor does well. But it means well. It has had no training in expression, but has a foundation of truth that is often lacking in more skillful utterance. So perhaps it is well not to be too exacting in regard to what constitutes politeness."—Indianapolis News.

Will Breed Goldenrod to Yield More Rubber

The United States Department of Agriculture is trying to increase the amount of rubber in goldenrod.

Believing that goldenrod has possibilities as an emergency source of rubber for the nation, the department has planted several native species of the plant at its experimental station near Charleston, S. C., and will select and breed promising varieties. Rubber specialists of the department believe the rubber content of goldenrod may be increased just as the suger content of sugar beets was increased by breeding and selection.

In the last two years the department analyzed more than thirty species of goldenrod gathered in the vicinity of Washington, D. C., and at Charleston, finding some in which the leaves, which contain most of the rubber in goldenrod, yielded as much as 7.91 per cent rubber.

The Charleston plots have plants contributed by the Edison laboratories in Florida, plants collected in the vincinity of Charleston, and plants from Washington, D. C., and nearby regions.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"Life" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. These words of Jesus are the Golden Text: "As the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."

The Lesson-Sermon presents various citations from the Bible, including Jesus' words, from Matthew, "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." Paul's words to the Corinthians are also included, "Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us: we pray you in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God."

Among the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, are the statements: "The way is straight and narrow, which leads to the understanding that God is the only Life." "When the destination is desirable, expectation speeds our progress."

LIEUT. BERT A. ALLEN POST No. 2415 AND AUXILIARY

The auxiliary held its regular business meeting Thursday night, July 12th. It was well attended by members as well as visitors. When the comrades joined us for refreshments, they brought the commander and adjutant of the new Business Men's post and the district commander. They each gave interesting talks. More power to the new post.

We had the report of our department convention which was held in San Diego last month. Many helpful new ideas were gained as well as old ones cleared up. Attending convention and hearing of the wonderful work being done thruout our county by the members made us appreciate the fine big organization to which we belong. Let us not forget that this year is going to be bigger and better than ever before. If you are eligible for the V. F. W. you had better join now and be in on the big things.

A large number from the post and auxiliary assisted with the Pioneer Days Barbecue.

Our treasurer, Mrs. Norris, was installed.

A new member, Mrs. Dorothy Kohler, was welcomed into the auxiliary.

Remember the joint county council meeting July 23 at the San Diego Chamber of Commerce building to see the movies of the encampment parade etc.

The monthly card party held July 10 at the home of Mrs. Florence Norris, was one of the nicest and best attended we have had. Prizes were awarded as follows: First and second at bridge Mrs. Riggs and Mrs. Farnsworth. Frst and second prizes for 500 go to Mrs. Whalen and Mrs. Gadett.

Our regular social meeting, July 26, will be a card party. No charge —a good time.

Be Careful Young Auto Driver and Riders

During the summer vacation time and while enjoying themselves at the beach, there is a more or less carefree spirit among the younger generation, but boys and girls, there is a limit. Be careful, when a little care might avoid a mishap. It is easy for a friend or companion to drop off your car and meet with serious accident.

Thursday of last week at Mission Beach two boys thumbing their way were picked up by an acquaintance and before the car had gone many blocks one of the boys fell off as the car swerved around a corner. The lad, Jim Martina, 16, of 3138 Forty-first street, struck his head and received a fatal wound, dying the next day in the hospital, to which he had been rushed in the police ambulance.

This is only one case out of many that are happening nowdays and might be a lesson to everyone of us, to be more cautious about overloading autos and riding on the running board or hanging on the back.
